

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The invention provides a method and system for providing car-pooling assistance using a wireless communication system. The method includes steps

5 for receiving a user carpool enrollment request, obtaining the positional information of the user's moving vehicle, storing the positional information as a route in a call center database and sending at least one available match based on the carpool enrollment request to the user.